An Excruciatingly Opinionated Guide to the Connecticut Shoreline

CALENDAR DEALS EAT SHOP TRAVEL TOWN GUIDES

My daughter comes home today (Yayay!) and we're going to break out some of the new cookbooks listed here and get to it. She's a traditionalist (can't even change up the Brussels sprouts) but I may throw in a dessert by Christina Tosi this year (see below). I doubt I'll get an argument. And after stuffing ourselves, literally, with my husband's famous Challah stuffing (link to recipe below), we'll head out with our guide to all the fun and local Black Friday and Small Business Saturday events. We've gathered our favorite holiday activities, too, and you'll find them on this list. Thankful for all of you who read and share the list.

Love,
Erica

Cookbooks To Give and To Get

We can't wait for the release of the holiday cookbooks and this year we've got a haul. We bought a bunch by our favorite chefs, read them in bed (nothing better), then cooked up some of the recipes. Here are the books you'll want to give and get (and YES, you'll need to make this Banana-Chocolate-Peanut Butter Crock-Pot Cake).

Susan Roberts' Inspiration

Susan Roberts inspiration is to make all women feel beautiful every time they put on a piece of her jewelry. Using handpicked rare and unusual semi-precious stones, she creates simple and classic designs that complement all fashion styles. Many of the pieces are limited additions. In her Connecticut studio, Susan has been hand making jewelry for more than 20 years. Her jewelry style stems from her love of art, color, and fashion. Her collections are available locally from New Haven to Niantic and online.
