

Most vacation plans have been quashed this summer, but lucky for us, there are plenty of outdoor activities right here on the Shoreline. We LIVE where lots of folks vacation. That said, if you've had enough of your four walls after the last four months of lock-down and are itching for a tiny break, we've put together a list of most of the nearby places we've stayed (and loved) over the years. And if you've got far-flung relatives and friends you're dying to see but uncomfortable hosting, we've rounded up a few places to house them.

love,
Erica

A Burger with a View at The Hangy Goose, Old Lyme

For such a picturesque spot, this eatery has inexplicably changed hands several times over the last few years. But we think the new owners may have finally nailed it. A straightforward breakfast and lunch menu with enough modern twists to keep it interesting (avocado toast, of course) comes with a spectacular view of the Lieutenant River...

Guilford's Farmers' Market at the Dudley Farm Museum, Guilford

Despite contending with these stifling temps, I've managed to buzz around to every farm stand and market within reach this summer. One of my top stops is a bustling, yet safely sprawling, open-air market on the corner of Routes 77 & 80 in Guilford. Guilford Farmers' Market has now joined forces with the summer market at the Dudley Farm Museum...

Places We've Stayed

While we're not traveling far this summer, here are some places we love for weekend jaunts:

Tomato Pie at 3rd Generation, Old Saybrook

Can you imagine a more perfect dish to celebrate summer and all its deliciousness than a blend of eggs, cheese, fresh corn, and bright tomatoes in a pastry crust? Ummm, no. A warmed slice and a green salad and you've got dinner.

Last week we wrote about a safely distant nail salon, pandemic-friendly indoor golf, and local caterers for small gatherings.

I Am Me: The Feminine Side of Lawyering

By: Kristi D. Kelly
Suisman Shapiro Attorneys-at-Law

Having a female lawyer can provide a level of personal comfort for some clients. Similar to seeking a female doctor, prospective clients routinely consider gender when seeking a lawyer's legal advice and advocacy. I am female and I am a lawyer, and oftentimes, clients say to me "I called you because I need to speak to a female about what has happened to me: only a woman will understand."

When dealing with the situations in life that typically bring clients to seek a lawyer, there is comfort in having a lawyer who "gets you." I do not look or talk like Perry Mason. I am me. I am a female. I am a mother. I love my work. I empathize with you. I grapple with the work/life balance (and the inherent mother's guilt) of maintaining a successful legal practice while driving the soccer carpool and being an attentive dance mom. I hear you. I represent you.
