

Ahhh, the dog days! I returned from a few days in New Orleans in a sweat and never stopped. It was actually hotter here. Despite air conditioning, there were a couple of afternoons last week that the most I could do was "lay like a lox" (a wonderful saying stolen from an old friend). I considered a movie, but even that seemed like too much work. I did get busy sending out the printed version of The E List Summer Guide. We got an enormous response and sold out quickly. I'm so sorry to anyone who was disappointed, but now we know! We'll print more next time.

Stay cool,
Erica

COLETTE HARRON

de Gerenday's, A Visionary Shop in Old Lyme

Calling all artists (and their friends)! There's a new shop in town that is not to be missed. The Lyme Academy of Fine Arts has reimagined its supply store after ancient French ateliers, replete with vintage floor-to-ceiling wood shelving and cabinets for the highly curated but extensive inventory of paints, inks, canvases, brushes, and vintage art books. It's Olivander's Wand Shop meets the 1880's Maison Sennelier Art Store in Paris.

The Hotel Peter & Paul in New Orleans

After my sister married in New Orleans 26 years ago, I swore I'd never go back in the summer, but my father's 85th birthday and an opening for an exhibit of his at The Historic New Orleans Collection changed my mind. And while it wasn't as hot as it's been up here, the 1000% humidity does take some acclimating! No matter, though, because I holed up at fantastic new digs, The Hotel Peter & Paul.
